Textile Union Leaders "On Spot" If President Asks End of Walkout

WASHINGTON — Textile strike leaders have been on a secret hot spot the last several days.

Ever since the appointment of the special mediation board they have lived in hourly fear that the President would ask them to call off the strike.

The situation put the embattled union chieftains in a paradoxical position.

They wanted Government intervention, considered the setting up of the board a signal victory, as giving official recognition to the strength and effectiveness of the workers' militant demonstration.

Also, the one thing they most urgently desired was an early peace gesture.

But, therein, was exactly where lay the rub.

They were eager for settlement negotiations, but not on the basis that they first call off the walk-out.

And that is exactly what they dreaded the President, citing the impartiality and fairness of his board and the ever-present danger of violence, would ask them to do.

Such a public move would put them on the horns of a desperate dilemma.

To reject the President's request would be hazardous public sympathy and support, enable the employers to raise a hue and cry that the union was defying the Nation's Chief Executive, and, under the cloak of such clamor, intensify strike-breaking operations.

On the other hand to bow to the proposal raised up other no less grave dangers.

They would lay themselves open to attack by the militant element within their ranks—which really forced the strike decision—of "selling out" with the additional strong possibility that the union would be split wide open.

But even more important, in the opinion of the union leaders, calling off the strike at the height of its fervor would be voluntarily abandoning the chief weapon that the workers are depending on to force the employers to consider peace terms.

Once the workers returned to the mills, the offensive would pass to the bosses, as it would be a tremendous task to call the workers out again.

Tug of War

A friendly, but determined, presidential tug-of-war is in progress behind the scenes.

The two presidential contestants are, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, and Glenn Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin.

The cause of the rivalry is brilliant, young Lloyd Garrison, Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

Prized dean of Wisconsin's law school, Garrison was "loaned" by Glenn Frank to the Federal Government for a three-months period, which expires October 1.

But so outstanding has been Garrison's NLRB work, that President Roosevelt does not want to give him up.

He is strongly urging Frank to extend Garrison's leave indefinitely.

So far, however, Frank has been cold to the idea. He fears that if he allows Garrison to remain in the East, Wisconsin may lose him.

Bad Business

The Senate Munitions Investigating Committee is unusual in that, with one exception, all its members are like hound-dogs in their enthusiasm for tracking down munitions scandals. In most committees there are serious differences of opinion.

The one exception is Senator Barbour, New Jersey's ex-prizefighter. He has sat through the hearing obviously distressed, his face getting longer and longer.

Finally at the close of one hearing, he said:

"I want to ask whether you think you can still sell your products after this investigation, and, if not, will other foreign firms get the business?"

"Business will be much more difficult," replied L. Y. Spear, vice-president of the Electric Boat Company.

At this point Steve Raushenbush, the Committee's chief investigator, spoke up.

"And I would like to ask the

SCHOOLS PLAN PORTRAYAL OF 'OCCUPATIONS'

Show Plans Progress as Time Grows Short For Preparation

ALSO STUDY FLOATS

High School's Part Is Not Yet Certain

A depiction of America's occupations will be presented by elementary pupils in the Circleville public school parade on Thursday afternoon of the Pumpkin show, it had been tentatively decided by school leaders today.

Principals of the four elementary schools and the high school met with Supt. E. L. Daley Tuesday afternoon to discuss the parade.

Whether or not the occupational theme will be carried out by high school pupils remains to be decided, as it is probable that these students will be presented in a different project.

TIME IS SHORT

It was pointed out at yesterday's meeting that the school teachers will be handicapped in preparing for the parade this year due to the lack of time.

Although the schools have not presented a parade for several years, six weeks were always needed for the event.

With school starting a week later now and the Pumpkin show dates set up two weeks earlier, time for preparation has been cut to three weeks. Recognizing the necessity of making every minute count, school leaders are not losing time in completing plans for the parade.

The school parade in previous years has been the highlight of the Pumpkin show. With more than 1,600 pupils and teachers taking part, the presentation has always been a colorful sight.

FLOATS PLANNED

A parade of occupations will undoubtedly be an interesting and educational exhibit. Several beautiful floats, at least one from each school building, will also be a part of the parade.

High school and grade teachers are to have their first social gathering of the year this evening, beginning at 5 o'clock, with a picnic planned at Niles' camp in Jackson-twp. The Pumpkin show parade will be an important subject discussed at that time.

Supt. Daley expects to have another meeting of school principals tonight or tomorrow to complete the parade plans. The principals

The new chairman, pointing out that "we have no reason to cancel out any name on the Democratic ticket from top to bottom," called upon all organizations to unite, forgetting ill-feelings of the past, and make way for a Democratic victory in November.

Extra Cash Prize Offer Is Spurring Candidates

Since the extra cash prize in The Herald's big circulation prize campaign was announced Monday, great activity has been taking place among the energetic members. Realizing that some member will win an extra prize of $25 this week, and thereby in all probability gain more votes toward the ultimate goal of the big $500 cash prize to be awarded at the end of the contest. The members are working this week as never before in their efforts to win this extra prize and to get in every one possible while they will count them double the regular schedule of votes.

The extra cash prize is to be awarded the member who succeeds in turning in the largest amount of money for subscriptions this week. Each worker competes for the extra cash prize on exactly an even basis inasmuch as only subscriptions turned in this week will apply on winning it. However the real workers are beginning to realize that they cannot expect to win the first of the regular prizes unless they put forth extreme effort now. The race is close—and any member of the race cannot expect to win one of the larger prizes just because they might have had a good report the first week. No one can expect an "easy win" as the competition grows keener as the race progresses.

Wishing to co-operate with the members who are working so valiantly for the big prizes as much as possible, The Herald office will be held open until a late hour Saturday night in order to give them the longest possible time to take advantage of this extra-cash-prize and double vote period.

NEW DEALERS WIN RACES IN MOST STATES

Gov. Comstock Believed Defeated In Michigan By Judge Lacy

LONG AGAIN VICTOR

Young Attorney Defeats Veteran Blease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The trend of the political times apparently is favorable to the New Deal, and inclined sharply toward the experimental left.

Leaders of both parties reached this conclusion today as they studied the surprising Maine election, and sought to analyze the conflicting cross currents that ran through yesterday's primaries in eight states.

Almost without exception, the New Dealers came through with flying colors in the Democratic primaries. The more ardent their advocacy of the New Deal, apparently, the greater their victory.

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—In a surprising upset which turned on the votes of the city of Detroit, Michigan Democrats today appeared to have chosen a new standard-bearer—Judge Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit—in yesterday's primary election.

LEAD NOW 5,500

With 2,763 precincts out of the state's 3,447 tabulated, Judge Lacy was holding a lead of 5,500 votes over Governor William A. Comstock for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Governor Comstock is the first Democratic governor of Michigan since the Wilson era, and heads the first Democratic state administration since the turn of the century.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 12.—Olin D. Johnston, young Spartanburg attorney, is the Democratic nominee for governor of South Carolina. He defeated Cole L. Blease, veteran former governor, by a majority of more than 30,000 votes in yesterday's run-off primary, returns showed today.

J. Emile Harley, of Barnwell, apparently had been named the party's candidate for Lieutenant Governor over Joseph E. Bryson, of Greenville, on the face of almost certain returns. The Democratic nomination in this state is equivalent to election.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—United States Senator Huey P. Long stepped into the national political spotlight today as the unquestioned dictator of the sovereign state of Louisiana.

Powers that a subsequent legislature gave him a sensational 77-hour special session a month ago were confirmed indirectly yesterday by the Louisiana electorate.

in the apartment of a friend in Brooklyn early today.

Levine was stopping at the home of A. J. Walters. Shortly before 4 a. m. he went into the kitchen, wrote three notes, one of which was to his mother, and another to his host, and then turned on all six jets in the gas range.

Walters, who previously had heard Levine get out of bed, smelled the fumes and rushed into the kitchen and turned off the gas.

A pulmonologist was summoned immediately and Levine was pronounced out of danger by physicians at 6 a. m.

Levine was unconscious when Walters found him and the pulmonologist crew worked over him desperately.

The survey will be in progress six weeks. Besides determining the need of an emergency school program Mr. Eagleson will also investigate the physical needs of county schools with the view of inaugurating a public works program.

146 Injured, Five With Bullets, During Heated Strike Riot

N. ENGLAND SCENE

2,000 National Guardsmen On Duty Today

SAYLESVILLE, R. I., Sept. 12.—With 1400 national guardsmen already here, and 600 more enroute, the mill area of Saylesville and Central Falls, one and a half miles long and a mile wide, was declared under absolute martial law today, as the aftermath to the worst strike riot in the history of the state. At the Sayles finishing plant last night and early today five persons were shot and slightly injured, 21 others, including several militiamen, sent to hospitals, and more than 120 others were bruised by stones.

Guardsmen were posted in a virtual circle around the entire area, and not a single person who could not show a reason for entering the district was allowed to get foot across the "deadline."

200 GO TO WORK

During a concerted early morning drive, the militia routed every alleged striker and sympathizer from the mill section with tear gas bombs and bayonets, and for the first time in more than 36 hours, the area was quiet. More than 200 workers at the Sayles finishing plant entered the battered gates today and went to work unmolested.

Brigadier General Herbert R. Dean, commandant of the national guardsmen, declared that every national guard in the state would be quartered here by this afternoon, and that military headquarters would be established here. He said he was attempting to work out a system whereby residents who live within the "bottled up" area, would be relieved of the restrictions which accompany military rule.

Street cleaners went to work today clearing up the streets following the riot of last night and early today, in which a crowd, estimated at times to be upwards of 4,000, clashed with the militia.

FOUGHT IN CEMETERY

Workers in the Moshassuck cemetery at Central Falls were also busy clearing up the debris left by a band of alleged strikers and sympathizers who took refuge behind headstones and hurled missiles at the guardsmen.

State troopers and local police and deputy sheriffs were relieved by the militia of the task of policing the district. Machine guns and searchlights were mounted atop the roof of the Sayles Finishing company, and the entire district today took on the appearance of a battleground.

RADIO OPERATOR NAMED AGITATOR

Witness Tells Inquiry Board That Captain Wanted George Alagna Fired.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Chief Radio Officer George W. Rogers of the Morro Castle testified today before the federal board of inquiry that Capt. Robert R. Willmott, who died a few hours before the disaster wanted him to discharge First Assistant Radio Operator George I. Alagna because he feared him as an "agitator."

"I think he's crazy, he's always causing trouble," Rogers quoted Captain Willmott as saying.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Frankly fearful that some of the key witnesses in the Morro Castle disaster may disappear before they have a chance to tell their versions of what took place, federal authorities probing the disaster today had under subpoena every member of the crew who survived the disaster.

Already one youthful survivor is detained as a material witness. In his case, however, the detention is described merely as a "protective measure," made necessary by the extraordinary importance of his testimony.

He is George I. Alagna, radio man aboard the doomed vessel.

DILLINGER CAPTOR WINS FOR SHERIFF

TUCSON, Ariz., Sept. 12.—John Belton, whose friends campaigned for him on the slogan "The Only Sheriff Who Ever Kapt Dillinger Behind Jail Bars," today was re-elected by a 2,000 majority over Walter Bailey, whom he defeated by only a few votes two years ago.

Sheriff Belton directed the capture of John Dillinger and his gang when they were in Tucson a year ago.

BIRDS NEED SINGLE CONTEST

Defeat Indianapolis In Two Games Tuesday; Score Five In Ninth for Afternoon Tilt and Outlast Indians, 11-10, at Night.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 12.—The Columbus Red Birds, who fought off the Indianapolis Indians twice yesterday in an afternoon-night doubleheader, today were within one step of clinching the championship of the Eastern division of the American association.

The Birds now are four and one-half games ahead of the Tribe, the nearest competitor for the Eastern division crown. Another victory in the last game of the series tonight will assure the Birds of the right to meet Minneapolis in a playoff between the two divisions to decide which will represent the association in the Little World's Series with the International League.

In the first game yesterday the Birds scored five in the ninth, defeating the Tribe 7 to 2. In the nightcap they were forced to stretch themselves to eke out an 11-10 victory.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 12.—The Toledo Mud Hens left here today for the last time this season with an 11-2 rout up against them for their last game with the Colonels yesterday.

Lawson and James, hurling for Toledo, were no match for Dick Bass, who allowed the Hens to tally with two of their six hits.

Another Jones Wins

Playing with the caliber of his famous golfing namesake, Bobby Jones, 18-year-old Ted Yarz, is snapped teeing off in his first round match of the national amateur tournament at Brookline, Mass., against Francis Ouimet, veteran of the links. Jones provided a real upset by defeating his opponent, one up.

DUNDEE DEFEATED BY TEDDY YAROSZ

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Thad (Teddy) Yarosz, youthful boxing idol of the steel district, ruled the middleweight class today by lifting the crown from titleholder Vince Dundee, Newark, N. J., in a 16-round split decision battle here last night.

Yarosz dethroned the champion but the chorus of "boos" that greeted the verdict showed it was far from a popular decision. Two judges split the decision and it was left to Al Grayber, referee of Pittsburgh, to cast the deciding vote in favor of the Monaca battler.

The battle, marked by an absence of punching power on the part of both fighters, lacked the color and glamor of a title match. It was exceedingly tame and not altogether pleasing to the crowd of 28,000.

Unofficial scores gave Yarosz a slight edge in six rounds and four to Dundee. Five were even. But the dethroned champion forced the issue. He kept pressing in and followed the challenger as Yarosz resorted to his peculiar style of combat. He continually pushed his left hand into Dundee's face and then circled the ring.

Neither battler displayed any hitting power. Dundee's weaving style and his experience caused Yarosz to miss frequently but the loser found it difficult to land any telling blows.

RED BIRDS RETURN FOR FINAL SERIES

COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—With 150 games under their belts since the sunny afternoon of April 17 when they attracted the largest opening day crowd in the American association, the Columbus Red Birds return home Friday night for a brief series with Toledo that will ring down the 1934 curtain. Friday night will be "home-coming" for the team although no special ceremonies are planned. The squad left here a month ago to undertake one of the longest road trips on record. Play will be called at 8:30 p. m.

Saturday afternoon the Birds will meet the Mud Hens in a matinee tilt at three o'clock. This will be the last Knot Hole Day of the season and thousands of the "Gang" are expected to be on hand to say farewell to their favorites.

APPRECIATION DAY

For the season's final Sunday, the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the Agonis Club, local sportsmen's organization, plan to express their appreciation in person to the team members who have fought so valiantly for a second Columbus pennant this year. Brief ceremonies at the plate prior to the game will find representatives of these two organizations expressing a sincere regret for the season's close. Since Columbus set a new high here on opening day, many of the local clubs and individuals who assisted in gaining the Hickey Attendance Cup are reserving seats so that they may witness the close of the race as well.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

MUCH WORK NEEDED

A LOT OF WORK IS IN store for Circleville high school football players if they intend to be in shape for the Sept. 12 opener with Columbus Academy here. We watched the gridgers working out for a while Tuesday evening and were impressed by the willingness of a number of the boys. Many don't know what it is all about but they seem willing to learn—Several others who are expected to make the team did not appear on the practice field while we were there.

LOU COOPER'S EFFORTS

Coach Herberholz is touched by the fighting spirit of young Louie Cooper, freshman rascal, who shows more natural ability when it comes to tackling a ball carrier than any kid on the squad in a long while—Young Louie may not go places this year but he will before long—Dave Steinhauser, too, doesn't know when to quit in scrimmage and may make the going tough for someone—Dave has yet to learn what his hands are for in a football game but that will probably come with practice.

McGINNIS AT CENTER?

Johnny McGinnis has been looking good at the snapper-back position and may snatch that job since Jimmy Lyle because of an injury will not be able to play this year—Joe Bell is working at the quarterback position and is dividing the kicking duties with George Spealkman, who is about the best built youth on the squad.

BOSTON GAINS CASH

Sam Otis, Cleveland sports writer, says: Boston Red Sox appear set for fourth place but the club has made more money than any other major league outfit according to semi-official figures.

THANKS TO PARMELEE

New York Giants can thank a former Red Bird for the National league pennant, we believe . . . That is Bud Parmelee . . . Every time New York has been in danger Parmelee has come through with a splendidly pitched game—Several weeks ago he hit a home run with one on to beat Chicago, 2-1—Yesterday he gave the Pirates six hits to break a Giant losing streak and gain on the Cardinals.

BOBCATS GIRL FOR DIFFICULT GRID SCHEDULE

Many Experienced Athletes Report to Peden; Halleck In Backfield.

ATHENS, Sept. 12.—"We mean business this year," Coach Don Peden told his Ohio university football squad Monday morning as the fall practice got under way here, and now, after two days of strenuous drill, 45 Bobcat grid candidates are thoroughly convinced that Peden was not mincing words.

Greeted by as rugged a looking squad as has donned the green and white jerseys for several years, Peden initiated his athletes with new plays and vigorous workouts of blocking and tackling. Although his men are heavier than usual and in fairly good condition for the start of practice, a majority of his football timber is of the unseasoned variety. The Ohio mentors feel that this rawness can be overcome only by intensive drill, and that is what they intend to dish out.

PLAY SEVEN MAJORS

But neither green material nor last year's graduation losses are giving Coach Peden his greatest concern this fall. His chief worry is that seven major contests must be played within a two-months' period, the severest schedule confronting Ohio coaches for many a season.

One major shift was noticed soon after the Bobcat candidates lined up for signal practice. Paul Halleck, 200-pound end from Youngstown, will remain at fullback where he played in spring practice, while Howard Brandenburg, Dayton fullback, had been shifted to end.

The viciousness with which backs and linemen tackled and blocked in the first two days of practice indicates that competition is going to be extremely keen for every post this fall. The Bobcat players realize that Coach Peden meant what he said Monday when he told them that the eleven men who did the most work and were in the best condition would be the team to take the field each Saturday.

Ohio university's 1934 football schedule will open Sept. 21 with Rio Grande here, and the following Saturday, Sept. 29, the Bobcats will trek to Bloomington for the fourth meeting with Indiana.

Levine and Chamberlin took off from Roosevelt field in the sturdy Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, on June 4, 1927, and headed out over the ocean for Berlin, in an effort to better Charles A. Lindbergh's 3,600 mile hop to Paris. After a flight of 44 hours, the plane was forced down at Hefts, Westphalia just 100 miles short of its goal.

Several years ago Levine was divorced by his wife, Mrs. Grace Nova Levine, after his name had been linked with that of Mabel Boll, famous as the "queen of diamonds."
Since then Levine has been beset by law suits and financial worries.

commission—the crucial offices over which a bitter pre-election war raged for many weeks, climaxed by the mobilization of the entire state militia and its concentration in New Orleans—were victorious without exception in Tuesday's congressional primary on the face of nearly complete, but unofficial, returns.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 12.—Gov. B. B. Moer gained on Judge Rawleigh C. Stanford in their race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination today.

On early returns Judge Stanford, "cowboy lawyer," had piled up a lead of 5,200 votes, but with returns in from more than one-half of Arizona's widely-scattered precincts, Gov. Moer gained, each candidate having polled 15,500 votes.

Both are supporters of the "New Deal."

The result was expected to be in doubt until late afternoon, and possibly until the official count is made.

U. S. Senator Henry F. Ashurst was assured the Democratic senatorial nomination with 16,681 votes against 14,500 for Sidney P. Osborn.

Isabella Greenway made a run-away race for re-election to Congress. Her lead over Frank Hilgemann, Phoenix farm leader, was 5 to 1.

OUTCOME IN DOUBT

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 12.—With returns in from 455 of the 2,600 precincts in the state, John C. Stevenson of Seattle, King-co, commissioner, held a slender lead today over Lewis B. Schwellenbach for the Democratic nomination of U. S. Senator.

Judge Charles Leavy, Spokane, was expected to make it a spirited race when returns from the eastern section of the state roll in.

Steverson polled 12,827, Schwellenbach, also of Seattle, 12,538, and Judge Charles H. Leavy of Spokane, 6,207.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 12.

A majority of more than 3 to 1 had been rolled up today by United States Senator Warren R. Austin, in the Vermont primaries, in his fight for re-nomination. Austin swamped Harry B. Amey, former federal district attorney.

His opponent in the November elections will be Fred C. Martin, collector of internal revenue for Vermont, who was nominated in the Democratic ranks without opposition.

DENVER, Sept. 12.—Gov. Ed. C. Johnson of Colorado was the Democratic party's candidate to succeed himself, on the face of early returns from the state primary election held Tuesday. Returns from approximately one-third of the 1,534 precincts in the state gave him a lead of more than 5,000 votes over Miss Josephine Roche, Liberal candidate.

Results from 497 precincts gave Johnson 24,303 votes to 19,082 for Miss Roche.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 12.

Returns today from New Hampshire's primaries yesterday, indicated that H. Styles Bridges, of Concord, Republican and John L. Sullivan, Manchester lawyer, had won the nomination of their party to oppose each other for the governorship at the November elections.

to re-elect U. S. Sen. Simeon D. Fess and to elect Clarence Brown governor, at a huge political rally at the state fairgrounds here on Sept. 28, were announced today by the Republican executive campaign committee.

Senator Fess and Brown will be the principal speakers at what the committee hopes will be the biggest Ohio G. O. P. rally in 25 years.

An executive campaign committee of 14 members, selected from the full committee of 100, today took charge of the Republican drive.

While the smaller unit was deciding on speakers, the larger group was busy with the details of the campaign.

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 5% of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whopped tomato, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if something better is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, erodes and seals the rectum.

Right to Vote

The United States of America does not guarantee to its citizens the right to vote, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The decision as to who may enjoy this privilege is reserved to the individual states. The Constitution merely provides that in granting the right to vote no state shall discriminate because of race, religion or sex. It is for this reason that there exists the occasional inconsistency of a person being a citizen of the United States, for although a state cannot make an alien a citizen of the United States, it may confer on him all the privileges that it confers on its own citizens.

"Yes," replied Mr. Spear. "Also," persisted Raushenbush, "would you not prefer some form of Government-regulated munitions industry whereby you would receive orders from the Government?"

Speakership Solution

Some of the boys on the inside have laid before Roosevelt an ingenious plan for solving the House Speakership problem.

With the anticipated tightening of party lines next session, the Speakership becomes most important. The Administration will need a strong, dependable hand at the helm.

In inner Administration circles Floor Leader Joe Byrns, who ardently covets the job is not considered the most desirable choice.

The President's advisers privately favor Representative Sam Rayburn, Chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee. Able, experienced, decisive, and in the full confidence of the President, Rayburn repeatedly has been called on to rescue the Administration's most important measures, always produced 100 per cent results.

Rayburn's election to the Speakership would be assured if the President were to intimate his support.

But Roosevelt — on the surface at least — is adhering to his alleged policy of not intervening in intra-party affairs. So some of his counselors have proposed the following formula for electing Rayburn without breaking his hands-off rule:

Byrns would be appointed Director of the Budget, recently vacated by Lew Douglas. From his long service on the House Appropriations Committee he has the experience necessary for the post.

Byrns' departure from the House would give Rayburn an irreplaceable position, make his elevation to the Speakers' chair certain.

Right Man

Francis Byrnes, prominent Capital attorney, has another reason why Byrns won't be Speaker.

Meeting the heavy-eye-browed Tennesseean the other day, he said: "Well, Congressman, I see you're running for Speaker, but there's not much chance of your getting it."

"Why not?" asked Byrns, a little irritated.

"Well, I've been watching the Democrats for fifty years now, and I've never seen 'em pick the right man yet."

instead of having to go to the lengths you have to get foreign business?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Spear. Judging from the general sentiment of the Committee, it looks as if Government regulation of the munitions industry is on the way.

HUEY WINS LOUISIANA ELECTION

Returns Show Victory Complete; All His Aides Win Nominations, Too.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12 — After four unsuccessful attempts, Senator Huey P. Long came to town on a Tuesday election and won.

His victory today in Louisiana's primary was so complete as to stun the anti-Long group and so sweeping were returns in this city that little, if anything, will be done about irregularities in country parishes, as charged by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

With only nine precincts of 262 missing, Huey had "put over" two congressional candidates for reelection; a candidate for Louisiana public service commissioner, and a candidate for Louisiana supreme court bench.

CARRIES NEW ORLEANS In a stronghold never before halfway carried by Long, in this election he won 12 of 17 wards losing two of these by small margins.

Joseph Fernandez, campaigning for reelection on Huey's ticket and pointing to support of President Roosevelt, won 25,526 votes in the city against 23,098 for Herve Radvich, young attorney opponent.

Paul H. Maloney, also up for reelection, got 22,574 votes against 22,484 for Gus Blanchard. Maloney's stand was with Fernandez.

Francis Williams, virulent anti-Long candidate received 46,681 votes for reelection to the public service commissioner, compared with 47,660 for James O'Connor, Jr., whose platform with Huey was to reduce telephone and public service rates.

JUDGE WINS TOO Civil District Judge Gleason, with anti-Long support, received in the city, 46,093 votes for the supreme court, compared with 48,391 for Judge Archie Higgins, who enjoyed Huey's support.

Name "Mackinac" The island is Mackinac and the county is Mackinac also. The name of the strait and of the city is spelled Mackinaw. These names are of the same Indian derivation and are pronounced alike, as mak-in-aw, with accent on the first syllable.

Textile Union Leaders "On Spot" If President Asks End of Walkout

WASHINGTON — Textile strike leaders have been on a secret hot spot the last several days.

Ever since the appointment of the special mediation board they have lived in hourly fear that the President would ask them to call off the strike.

The situation put the embattled union chiefs in a paradoxical position.

They wanted Government intervention, considered the setting up of the board a signal victory, as giving official recognition to the strength and effectiveness of the workers' militant demonstration.

Also, the one thing they most urgently desired was an early peace gesture.

But, therein, was exactly where lay the rub.

They were eager for settlement negotiations, but not on the basis that they first call off the walkout.

And that is exactly what they dreaded the President, citing the impartiality and fairness of his board and the ever-present danger of violence, would ask them to do.

Such a ploy would put them on the horns of a desperate dilemma.

To reject the President's request would be hazardous public sympathy and support, enable the employers to raise a hue and cry that the union was defying the Nation's Chief Executive, and under the cloak of such clamor intensify strike-breaking operations.

On the other hand to bow to the proposal raised up other no less grave dangers.

They would lay themselves open to attack by the militant element within their ranks—which really forced the strike decision of "selling out." With the additional strong possibility that the union would be split wide open.

But even more important, in the opinion of the union leaders, calling off the strike at the height of its fervor would be voluntarily abandoning the chief weapon that the workers are depending on to force the employers to consider peace terms.

Once the workers returned to the mills, the offensive would pass to the bosses, as it would be a tremendous task to call the workers out again.

Tug of War

A friendly, but determined, presidential tug-of-war is in progress behind the scenes.

The two presidential contestants are, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, and Glenn Frank, President of the University of Wisconsin.

The cause of the rivalry is brilliant, young Lloyd Garrison, Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

Prized dean of Wisconsin's law school, Garrison was "loaned" by Glenn Frank to the Federal Government for a three-month period, which expires October 1.

But so outstanding has been Garrison's NLRB work, that President Roosevelt does not want to give him up.

He is strongly urging Frank to extend Garrison's leave indefinitely.

So far, however, Frank has been cold to the idea. He fears that if he allows Garrison to remain in the East, Wisconsin may lose him.

Bad Business

The Senate Munitions Investigating Committee is unusual in that, with one exception, all its members are like bloodhounds in their enthusiasm for tracking down munitions scandals. In most committees there are serious differences of opinion.

The one exception is Senator Fairbairn, New Jersey's ex-prize fighter. He has sat through the hearing obviously distressed, his face getting longer and longer.

Finally at the close of one hearing, he said:

"I want to ask whether you think you can still sell your products after this investigation, and, if not, will other foreign firms get the business?"

"Business will be much more difficult," replied L. Y. Spear, vice-president of the Electric Boat Company.

At this point Steve Raushenbush, the Committee's chief investigator, spoke up.

"And I would like to ask the

SCHOOLS PLAN PORTRAYAL OF 'OCCUPATIONS'

Show Plans Progress as Time Grows Short
For Preparation

ALSO STUDY FLOATS

High School's Part Is Not Yet Certain

A depiction of America's occupations will be presented by elementary pupils in the Circleville public school parade on Thursday afternoon of the Pumpkin show, it had been tentatively decided by school leaders today.

Principals of the four elementary schools and the high school met with Supt. E. L. Daley Tuesday afternoon to discuss the parade.

Whether or not the occupational theme will be carried out by high school pupils remains to be decided, as it is probable that these students will be presented in a different project.

TIME IS SHORT

It was pointed out at yesterday's meeting that the school teachers will be handicapped in preparing for the parade this year due to the lack of time. Although the schools have not presented a parade for several years, six weeks were always needed for the event.

With school starting a week later now and the Pumpkin show dates set up two weeks earlier, time for preparation has been cut to three weeks. Recognizing the necessity of making every minute count, school leaders are not losing time in completing plans for the parade.

The school parade in previous years has been the highlight of the Pumpkin show. With more than 1,600 pupils and teachers taking part, the presentation has always been a colorful sight.

A parade of occupations will undoubtedly be an interesting and educational exhibit. Several beautiful floats, at least one from each school building, will also be a part of the parade.

High school and grade teachers are to have their first social gathering of the year this evening, beginning at 5 o'clock, with a picnic planned at Niles' camp in Jackson-twp. The Pumpkin show parade will be an important subject discussed at that time.

Supt. Daley expects to have another meeting of school principals tonight or tomorrow to complete the parade plans. The principals' meeting will be held at the high school.

By Judge Lacy

LONG AGAIN VICTOR

Young Attorney Defeats
Veteran Blease

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The trend of the political times apparently is favorable to the New Deal, and inclined sharply toward the experimental left.

Leaders of both parties reached this conclusion today as they studied the surprising Maine election and sought to analyze the conflicting cross currents that ran through yesterday's primaries in eight states.

Almost without exception, the New Dealers came through with flying colors in the Democratic primaries. The more ardent their advocacy of the New Deal, apparently, the greater their victory.

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—In a surprising upset which turned on the votes of the city of Detroit, Michigan Democrats today appeared to have chosen a new standard-bearer—Judge Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit—in yesterday's primary election.

LEAD NOW 5,500

With 2,763 precincts out of the state's 3,447 tabulated, Judge Lacy was holding a lead of 5,500 votes over Governor William A. Comstock for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Governor Comstock is the first Democratic governor of Michigan since the Wilson era, and heads the first Democratic state administration since the turn of the century.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 12.—Olin D. Johnston, young Spartanburg attorney, is the Democratic nominee for governor of South Carolina. He defeated Cole L. Blease, veteran former governor, by a majority of more than 30,000 votes in yesterday's run-off primary, returns showed today.

J. Emile Harley, of Barnwell, apparently had been named the party's candidate for Lieutenant Governor over Joseph R. Bryson, of Greenville, on the face of almost complete returns. The Democratic nomination in this state is equivalent to election.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—United States Senator Huey P. Long stepped into the national political spotlight today as the unquestioned dictator of the sovereign state of Louisiana.

Powers that a subsequent legislature gave him a sensational 77-hour special session a month ago were confirmed indirectly yesterday by the Louisiana electorate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Penniless and disheartened by a long series of "bad breaks," Charles A. Levine, famous as the first trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, who flew with Clarence Chamberlin from New York to Germany in 1927, attempted to commit suicide in the apartment of a friend in Brooklyn early today.

Levine was stopping at the home of A. J. Walters. Shortly before 4 a. m. he went into the kitchen, wrote three notes, one of which was to his mother, and another to his host, and then turned on all six jets in the gas range.

Walters, who previously had heard Levine get out of bed, smelled the fumes and rushed into the kitchen and turned off the gas.

A pulmotor crew was summoned immediately and Levine was pronounced out of danger by physicians at 8 a. m.

Levine was unconscious when Walters found him and the pulmotor crew worked over him desperately.

N. ENGLAND SCENE

2,000 National Guardsmen
On Duty Today

SAYLESVILLE, R. I., Sept. 12.—With 1400 national guardsmen already here, and 600 more enroute, the mill area of Saylesville and Central Falls, one and a half miles long and a mile wide, was declared under absolute martial law today, as the aftermath to the worst strike riot in the history of the state. At the Sayles finishing plant last night and early today five persons were shot and slightly injured, 21 others, including several militiamen, sent to hospitals, and more than 120 others were bruised by stones.

Guardsmen were posted in a virtual circle around the entire area, and not a single person who could not show a reason for entering the district was allowed to set foot across the "deadline."

200 GO TO WORK

During a concerted early morning drive, the militia routed every alleged striker and sympathizer from the mill section with tear gas bombs and bayonets, and for the first time in more than 36 hours, the area was quiet. More than 200 workers at the Sayles finishing plant entered the battered gates today and went to work unmolested.

Brigadier General Herbert R. Dean, commandant of the national guardsmen, declared that every national guardsman in the state would be quartered here by this afternoon, and that military headquarters would be established here. He said he was attempting to work out a system whereby residents who live within the "bottled up" area, would be relieved of the restrictions which accompany military rule.

Street cleaners went to work today clearing up the streets following the riot of last night and early today, in which a crowd, estimated at times to be upwards of 4,000, clashed with the militia.

FOUGHT IN CEMETERY

Workers in the Moshasuck cemetery at Central Falls were also busy clearing up the debris left by a band of alleged strikers and sympathizers who took refuge behind headstones and hurled missiles at the guardsmen.

State troopers and local police and deputy sheriffs were relieved by the militia of the task of policing the district. Machine guns and searchlights were mounted atop the roof of the Sayles Finishing company, and the entire district today took on the appearance of a battleground.

RADIO OPERATOR NAMED AGITATOR

Witness Tells Inquiry Board
That Captain Wanted
George Alagna Fired.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Chief Radio Officer George W. Rogers of the Morris Canal testified today before the federal board of inquiry that Capt. Robert R. Willmott, who died a few hours before the disaster wanted him to discharge First Assistant Radio Operator George L. Alagna because he feared him as an "agitator."

"I think he's crazy, he's always causing trouble," Rogers quoted Captain Willmott as saying.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Frankly fearful that some of the key witnesses in the Morris Canal disaster may disappear before they have a chance to tell their versions of what took place, federal authorities probing the disaster today had under subpoena every member of the crew who survived the disaster.

Already one youthful survivor is detained as a material witness. In his case, however, the action is described merely as a "protective measure," and is necessary by the extraordinary importance of his testimony.

He is George L. Alagna, radio man aboard the doomed vessel.

BIRDS NEED SINGLE CONTEST

Beat Indianapolis In Two Games Tuesday; Score Five In Ninth for Afternoon Tilt and Outlast Indians, 11-10, at Night.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 12.—The Columbus Red Birds, who fought off the Indianapolis Indians twice yesterday in an afternoon-night doubleheader, today were within one step of clinching the championship of the Eastern division of the American association.

The Birds now are four and one-half games ahead of the Tribe, the nearest competitor for the Eastern division crown. Another victory in the last game of the series tonight will assure the Birds of the right to meet Minneapolis in a playoff between the two divisions to decide which will represent the association in the Little World's Series with the International League.

In the first game yesterday the Birds scored five in the ninth, defeating the Tribe 7 to 2. In the nightcap they were forced to stretch themselves to eke out an 11-10 victory.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 12.—The Toledo Mud Hens left here today for the last time this season, leaving an 11-2 record up against them for their last game with the Colonels yesterday.

Lawson and James, hurling for Toledo, were no match for Dick Bass, who allowed the Hens to walk with two of their six hits.

DUNDEE DEFEATED BY TEDDY YAROSZ

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—Thad (Teddy) Yarosz, youthful boxing idol of the steel district, ruled the middleweight class today by lifting the crown from titleholder Vince Dundee, Newark, N. J., in a 15-round split decision battle here last night.

Yarosz dethroned the champion but the chorus of "boo's" that greeted the verdict showed it was far from a popular decision. Two judges split the decision and it was left to Al Grayber, referee of Pittsburgh, to cast the deciding vote in favor of the Monaca battler.

The battle, marked by an absence of punching power on the part of both fighters, lacked the color and glamor of a title match. It was exceedingly tame and not altogether pleasing to the crowd of 25,000.

Official scores gave Yarosz a slight edge in six rounds and four to Dundee. Five were even. But the dethroned champion forced the issue. He kept pressing in and followed the challenger as Yarosz resorted to his peculiar style of combat. He continually pushed his left hand into Dundee's face and then circled the ring.

Neither battler displayed any hitting power. Dundee's weaving style and his experience caused Yarosz to miss frequently, but the loser found it difficult to land any telling blows.

BOBCATS GIRL FOR DIFFICULT GRID SCHEDULE

Many Experienced Athletes Report to Peden; Halleck In Backfield.

ATHENS, Sept. 12.—"We mean business this year," Coach Don Peden told his Ohio university football squad Monday morning as the fall practice got under way here, and now, after two days of strenuous drill, 45 Bobcat grid candidates are thoroughly convinced that Peden was not mincing words.

Greeted by as rugged a looking squad as has donned the green and white jerseys for several years, Peden initiated his athletes with new plays and vigorous workouts of blocking and tackling. Although his men are heavier than usual and in fairly good condition for the start of practice, a majority of his football timber is of the unseasoned variety. The Ohio mentors feel that this rawness can be overcome only by intensive drill, and that is what they intend to dish out.

PLAY SEVEN MAJORS
But neither green material nor last year's graduation losses are giving Coach Peden his greatest concern this fall. His chief worry is that seven major contests must be played within a two-months' period, the severest schedule confronting Ohio coaches for many a season.

One major shift was noticed soon after the Bobcat candidates lined up for signal practice. Paul Halleck, 200-pound end from Youngstown, will remain at fullback where he played in spring practice, while Howard Brandenburg, Dayton fullback, had been shifted to end.

The viciousness with which backs and linemen tackled and blocked in the first two days of practice indicates that competition is going to be extremely keen for every post this fall. The Bobcat players realize that Coach Peden meant what he said Monday when he told them that the eleven men who did the most work and were in the best condition would be the team to take the field each Saturday.

Ohio university's 1934 football schedule will open Sept. 21 with Rio Grande here, and the following Saturday, Sept. 29, the Bobcats will trek to Bloomington for the fourth meeting with Indiana.

commission the crucial offices over which a bitter pre-election war raged for many weeks, climaxed by the mobilization of the entire state militia and its concentration in New Orleans—were victorious without exception in Tuesday's congressional primary on the face of nearly complete, but unofficial, returns.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 12.—Gov. B. E. McMur gained on Judge Rawliff C. Stanford in their race for the Democratic gubernatorial nominations as additional returns were tabulated today.

On early returns Judge Stanford, "cowboy lawyer," had piled up a lead of 5,200 votes, but with returns in from more than one-half of Arizona's widely-scattered precincts, Gov. McMur gained, each candidate having polled 15,500 votes.

Both are supporters of the "New Deal."

The result was expected to be in doubt until late afternoon and possibly until the official count is made.

U. S. Senator Henry F. Ashurst was assured the Democratic senatorial nomination with 16,681 votes against 14,500 for Sidney P. Osborn.

Isabella Greenway made a runaway race for re-election to Congress. Her lead over Frank Hilgemann, Phoenix farm leader, was 5 to 1.

OUTCOME IN DOUBT
OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 12.—With returns in from 455 of the 2,600 precincts in the state, John C. Stevenson of Seattle, King-commissioner, held a slender lead today over Lewis B. Schwellenbach for the Democratic nomination of U. S. Senator.

Judge Charles W. Leavy, Spokane, was expected to make it a spirited three-way race when returns from the eastern section of the state roll in.

Stevenson polled 12,827, Schwellenbach, also of Seattle, 12,538, and Judge Charles H. Leavy of Spokane, 6,207.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 12.—A majority of more than 3 to 1 had been rolled up today by United States Senator Warren R. Austin, in the Vermont primaries, in his fight for re-nomination. Austin swamped Harry B. Amey, former federal district attorney.

His opponent in the November elections will be Fred C. Martin, collector of internal revenue for Vermont, who was nominated in the Democratic ranks without opposition.

In the fight for the governorship, being vacated by Governor John G. Winant, Lieutenant Governor Benjamin M. Smith, of Rutland, defeated former Lieutenant Governor Benjamin William for the Republican nomination, while James P. Lemay was unopposed in Democratic ranks.

DENVER, Sept. 12.—Gov. Ed. C. Johnson of Colorado was the Democratic party's candidate to succeed himself, on the face of early returns from the state primary election held Tuesday. Returns from approximately one third of the 1,534 precincts in the state gave him a lead of more than 5,000 votes over Miss Josephine Roche, Liberal candidate.

Results from 497 precincts gave Johnson 24,303 votes to 19,082 for Miss Roche.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 12.—Returns today from New Hampshire's primaries yesterday, indicated that H. Styles Bridges, of Concord, Republican and John L. Sullivan, Manchester lawyer, had won the nomination of their party to oppose each other for the governorship at the November elections.

DEMOCRATIC

"Any man that says one can't be a Christian and be in politics is un-American and has not at heart the principles of Democracy, because Democracy is the child of Christianity," Rev. Rutherford declared.

He pleaded for clean politics and urged his listeners to look to Democratic leaders of the past for inspiration. He praised Woodrow Wilson as "the world's greatest leader up to this time."

"START AT ONCE"
Rev. Rutherford concluded his remarks by urging the club members to start at once their "Democratic victory campaign." "October 1 is not soon enough, start at once if you want to win the race," he said.

Harry Bartholomew, secretary of the club, reported last night that the total membership to date is 395.

J. A. McLaughlin, president, appointed the following program committee for the next two meetings: David Courtwright, Ernie Weiler, L. T. Shaner, and Pat J. Kirwin.

The next meeting of the club will be held Sept. 25.

Mildred Ruffner, music instructor is recovering from an appendectomy. She is returning Monday.

RIGHT TO VOTE
The United States Constitution does not guarantee to its citizens the right to vote, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The decision as to who may enjoy this privilege is reserved to the individual states. The Constitution merely provides that in granting the right to vote no state shall discriminate because of race, religion or sex. It is for this reason that there exists the occasional inconsistency of a person being a citizen of the United States, for although a state cannot make an alien a citizen of the United States, it may confer on him all the privileges that it confers on its own citizens.

Children and Safety

WITH children marching to school again, one can not contemplate them without wondering how many of them will have met death under the wheels of a motor vehicle before the schools end next June.

It can be predicted with almost certainty that some will have died in this way and that others will have received injuries which will cripple them for the rest of their lives. Sufficient basis for the prediction is to be found in the record of past years. It seems impossible to prevent accidents involving school children as the victims.

Police vigilance is increased with the opening of schools. School teachers impress their charges the vital importance of exercising care in crossing streets and try to instruct them in the performance of this hazardous undertaking. Parents caution their children against taking chances and urge upon them the necessity of watching their ears before stepping into the street in order to avoid being run down. The motoring public is appealed to be more careful than ordinarily, and, as a reminder, signs are painted in the streets in the vicinity of school buildings.

Yet, despite all of these precautions, fatal accidents occur. How to prevent them is a problem that seems impossible of solution. Children forget or carelessly ignore the safety instructions given them, and periods of recklessness seize motorists and truck drivers.

The greatest responsibility for the safety of children rests upon those who operate motor vehicles. Children, especially the younger ones, many of whom for the first time are venturing into the streets alone, can not be expected to exercise the sense of care as would an older person more experienced in the dangers of the streets. If motorists would keep constantly in mind the need of exercising extraordinary care and would do this, the lives of many children would be saved.

Automobile clubs are doing important work in trying to further safety education.

Continuance of their efforts and maintenance of other precautions already in operation give hope that this year's fatality lists will be sharply reduced. Every possible precaution must be taken to see that the children are protected.

This task is one in the performance of which every individual should feel that he has a duty. Lives are at stake.

It seems quite a long time since General Johnson expressed a desire for more criticism of NRA.

Evils of Parole

LET parole stand but improve the parole system, is the consensus of public opinion and the gist of a number of reports made by parole reform commissions. Parole machinery at this seems to work so badly as to require overhauling or scrapping.

Disgust at the parole and reprieve of notorious convicts has put the whole principle of extra leniency at issue in a number of states. If there were no alternative to the rubber stamp method of parole, it would be best to adopt that remedy, but if it is possible to administer parole discriminately and thoroughly this type of indulgence to deserving prisoners, which has a reformative value, should not be discarded.

Where many parole boards fail is in the perfunctory manner in which they perform their important duties. They act, in the main, simply as agencies for the endorsement of minimum sentences, without giving the study of the merits or demerits of individual cases which intelligent operation of a parole law demands.

What can be done to put real energy and decision in a parole board? That question can best be answered by the statement that an underfinanced and under-armed system is not a fair test for parole, and that describes the typical system.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"Surely, Uncle Jim, it is not an unheard-of thing that a poor person should inherit an unexpected fortune."
 "Oh no—that has happened—but this Ann Haskel! Her amazing story as you tell it! Putting her son out of her life; educating him under Judge Shannon's guardianship! Her peculiar—her—ah—questionable activities in the backwoods! Your refusal to sell this property when I had the deeds all made out ready for your signature! Your turning it all over to this Haskel woman exactly as it stands, with all the family heirlooms, art treasures, and everything, including even Wilson, and your restriction that these people must never know of your ownership or your interest in them—why—why—it is worthy of Bill Carroll himself!"

"I merely wish to help these good people without putting them under obligation to me," said Diane. "Besides, if Ann Haskel knew, she would never consent to living in my old home on any terms."

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders with a look which said: "I can see there is something back of all this, young lady, which you do not choose for me to know, but just the same I shall uncover it."
 Aloud he remarked: "But there are so many uncertainties, so many difficulties. And I warn you again there are quite likely to be consequences—very unpleasant consequences."

"Never mind the consequences, Uncle Jim."

"Spoken like a true Carol. But, my dear girl, have you considered what a story the newspapers will make of it when the truth of the matter is discovered? The daughter of the proud old Carroll family—the distinguished artist—the heiress to the Carroll fortune—secretly interested in these Ozark natives whom she met while painting in the backwoods! If there were no young man in the case it might be different. Can't you imagine what these Sunday-supplement writers will do to you and the handsome John Herbert? How did you happen to meet this young fellow, anyway? You haven't told me that."

Diane flushed. "Does that really matter? It is Ann Haskel that I wish to help. John Herbert will take care of himself. As to the difficulties and dangers, I am sure you are unduly alarmed. The whole thing seems simple enough to me. I live in my own home, I am an agent, rent this property. Surely there is nothing strange or unusual in that? The Haskels will never discover that they are living in my home, because nobody who ever knew our family ever goes near that part of the city. You know as well as I how little chance there is for these strangers from the backwoods ever to come in touch with the old Carroll set. Wilson has his instructions. All of the other tenants are new to the city. The Haskels will soon be on or building a home of their own."

"But, Diane, surely the members of the Wilderness Club know about Ann Haskel's suddenly acquired wealth, and that she and her son and that creature, Nance Jordan, have moved here to the city. I hate to think what those fuzzy-brained, jazz-crazy, cocktail hounds would do with your Ozark friends if they should get hold of them. It's these days, to take up all the rage of these fellows, gangsters—anyone that can be used to stir up a sensation."

"My friends are not freaks, Uncle Jim."

"I know, I know, dear; but you get what I am driving at." Diane admitted, soberly. "I had thought of the Wilderness Club set. But, really, I don't feel that we need worry. I am certain that not one of those who were at the Lodge this summer knows anything about the Haskels' having inherited a fortune or even that they are here in the city. You see, Uncle Jim, there are good reasons why Ann Haskel and her son would not discuss their affairs with anyone of that crowd, or have anything to do with them."

She told him about the Ma Cindelrella joke which the mountain woman had overheard. Ann Haskel is a proud woman. Uncle Jim—proud not only for herself, but for her son. I can easily imagine what her reaction to such talk about her would be. There was enough truth in it to make it sting. As for John Herbert—well, you can see how friendly he would feel toward those people. I am sure neither Ann nor her son has gone near the Lodge or even spoken to one of that crowd since the incident."

"How did Mrs. Haskel happen to tell you?"
 "She didn't. She includes me with 'them Lodge folks,' as she calls them. She says they are a 'triflin', no-account, worthless lot.' She despises them and the ground they tread on."

"She's not so far wrong at that," murmured Mr. Belden.
 Diane continued: "She thinks I am the same sort because, as she says, 'I run with 'em and they are my kind of folks.' She told me I was 'triflin' and no account as the wife of 'em, and she practically threatened to kill me if I didn't, as she put it, 'let her boy alone.'"

The girl spoke lightly in an effort to hide her feeling.
 Lawyer Belden, observing, polished his glasses again. Then: "But look here, Diane, how did you learn of Ann Haskel's sudden fortune and that she was coming here to this city?"

The girl colored and answered, reluctantly: "Well, you see, Uncle Jim, it was like this. The day I was leaving I met John Herbert at Wilderness Station. He was making his Pullman reservations. He told me about the fortune which had come to his mother, and their plan to come here. Hastily she added: 'But John Herbert thinks I live in New York. Uncle Jim, he doesn't know a thing about the old Carroll home in this city, or about the Carroll money. He doesn't dream that I am anything but a more or less successful artist from New York.'"

Suddenly lawyer Belden threw back his head and laughed—laughed until the tears ran down his plump, smooth-shaven cheeks. And in a moment Diane, in spite of her earnestness, was laughing with him.

"Presently the girl said: 'Really, Uncle Jim, don't you find Ann Haskel a most unusual and interesting person?'"

For some reason this set the lawyer off in another gale of laughter. As if to excuse his unseemly mirth he said:

"You should have seen Wilson's face when I introduced the Haskel woman and her companion, Nance."

"But I explained everything to Wilson," returned Diane.

"So I understood."
 "Yes, I told him Mrs. Haskel had lived for many years a successful life in her country estate in the South, and that she was unaccustomed to city ways. I told him she was very proud, rich, and eccentric, and all that. Wilson understands, I am sure. He will carry out the plan to perfection. I don't think he has dared attempt it without him."

"But this son, John Herbert—won't he develop a few fleas of his own about how this newly acquired Haskel fortune should—has—be inherited? I understand he is the only child."

Diane laughed, but could not entirely hide her confusion. "When you know his mother better you will understand that any ideas John Herbert may have will present no difficulties—that is, I mean, for the present."

"Ann did appear to be running the show," admitted Belden, significantly.

Diane, with heightened color, said, earnestly: "To me, Uncle Jim, Ann Haskel is like a rare old painting which has been covered over with dirt and varnish and repainted until its original beauty is almost lost. Then some one accidentally discovers the real picture beneath all the accumulation of misplacement, and the original masterpiece is restored. I want to do something like that for Ann. The woman feels dimly that there is a life which she has never touched except through Judge Shannon and her son. She has seen enough of the Lodge crowd to know that they are not her kind. You know the sort of people she would be sure to meet here in the city if she were unprotected. John Herbert cannot protect her because she is so set in her belief that she must save him."

"Save him from what?"
 "Why—from 'them Lodge folks' and all their kind,' as Ann herself would say."
 "Ah yes, and is this young gentleman—he—ah—agreeable to being saved from 'them Lodge folks' and all their kind'—particularly from their kind?"

The girl chose to disregard this. "Ann Haskel has seen too much of that Wilderness Club set. I want her to know our kind of people. John Herbert has not the dreadful handicap which has always held his mother back. You have seen him. You know and I know what he is. We are we always live among educated, cultured people. Ann Haskel can never understand her son until she is brought in touch with, and learned to know, the people and things which naturally go with the life and thought of a man like John Herbert. That is why I want her to live in my old home with all its treasures—pictures, books—with its—its—atmosphere. That's why I want her to have Wilson. Think what an experience she would have with the average butler! Wilson has understanding and is kind. He knows I wish to help this backwoods woman. He will be her teacher. John Herbert belongs in such a home; Ann will feel it. Seeing her son in his own world, she will understand him. She is too intelligent not to discover the difference between the Carroll house and the Wilderness Lodge."

"Exactly," exclaimed the lawyer. "Now, my dear, we are getting somewhere."

"Are we?"
 "Well?"
 "Well, doesn't it follow logically that when Ann Haskel learns what you have so cleverly set out to teach her she will know that Diane Carroll is not one of the Lodge bunch, and therefore she will not longer feel the necessity of protecting her son from—"

"Uncle Jim! Stop it! You're too darned clever!"

But, manlike, Uncle Jim would not.

"The son of this old masterpiece which you have discovered under such—ah—romantic circumstances—he is quite a modern work of art, I take it?"

The Carroll chin went up defiantly. "John Herbert is modern, yes, with a university education, and including all sorts of football and athletic honors, but he has retained the best of the old masters."

"Meaning just what?"
 "Meaning that with all his modern thought he has quite old-fashioned ideas of honor and duty and justice and gratitude and loyalty. He has ideals, too, which is equally old of date. No one has ideals any more, you know, particularly a writer or an artist. John Herbert is as hopelessly old-fashioned as daddy was himself."

"Judge Shannon," murmured the lawyer.

"Judge Shannon, of course," she retorted. "But don't overlook the point that it was Ann Haskel's appreciation of Judge Shannon's character which led her to put her son out of her own life forever. The woman sacrificed herself in order that her boy might escape the environment in which she lived, and grow up with those ideals which Judge Shannon has personified. Doesn't this prove that there is something fine under all the surface ugliness and ignorance—yes, and lawlessness, of this backwoods woman? Doesn't it indicate that John Herbert was born to what he is? You can make a thoroughbred out of a mongrel."

Belden threw up his plump hands in full surrender. "Help! I give up. You win. Gad! Diane, what a lawyer you would have made!"

"Thanks," murmured Diane, with a provoking drawl. "I know you mean it as a compliment."

Diplomatically Mr. Belden conceded the point.

Shut-ins Are Susceptible To Throat Infections

Lack of Fresh Air, Exercise, Invite Germs of Tonsillitis and Pharyngitis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States senator from New York
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

IF YOU live in a cold country, where there is lots of snow, it takes bravery to get out of doors unless your duties demand it. In consequence, you stay at home in, per-haps, getting little fresh air and less exercise.

Your digestion is upset and the elimination is not what it should be. Nine times out of ten, in such a throat, it will be found that constipation is present. It is more than a coincidence. There is a real relationship with the constipation coming first.

Wrong living is sure to lower the vitality and prepare the way for illness. The germs of disease have an easy time under such circumstances. Anything that lowers vitality prepares the way for sore throat, of which there are several forms. One is known as "tonsillitis" and another is "pharyngitis."

You know that one and where the tonsils are. One or both may be swollen and inflamed in an attack of tonsillitis.

A Raw Throat

The pharynx is the part of the throat you can see when you open the mouth widely and gaze as you stand in front of the mirror. Between the nasal cavities and the back of the throat which you can see, the part above the roof of the mouth, is another part of the pharynx. Inflammation of the region of the anatomy is known as pharyngitis. It begins with a most disagreeable raw and scraped feeling. It gives the sensation of having had the inside of the throat skinned, leaving a raw and terrifically tender area.

In tonsillitis there is a splinter-like pain on one or both sides. With it is very high fever, perhaps running up to 104 degrees. There is great prostration, bounding pulse and evidence of real illness.

Danger in Neglect

The headache is pronounced. The tongue is coated. The breath is bad. It hurts to chew or move the jaw. Even talking is painful.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Dear Sir:
 We have just closed one of the most delightful conferences that our church has ever held. From ministers and laymen came words of appreciation of the hospitality of the Circleville people.

Everyone seemed interested in helping give a cordial reception to our visitors.

I take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Circleville and vicinity who opened their homes for entertainment or in any way contributed to their comfort. Also to thank you and the publishers for the generous space given us in the columns of your paper.

I am voicing the wishes of our congregation when I say to you and to everyone—"Thank you."

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

The biggest "practical joker" in Hollywood, its prime "ribber," Vince Barnett, comes to the Grand theatre in "Madame Spy." Universal's dramatic success, featuring Fay Wray and Nils Asther, lending a decided comedy touch to the picture.

Vince was born of professional parents on July 4, 1903 in Pittsburgh, Pa. Despite his "clowning" attributes, Barnett was given a good education, having graduated from Duquesne University and Carnegie Tech.

His first stage experience was with Earl Carroll "Varieties" in 1927-28. Coming to Hollywood the next year he "crashed" into pictures as a comedian, with Universal signing him to a contract last year. He recently appeared in "The Big Game," "Scarface" and "Tiger Shark."

HUEY WINS LOUISIANA ELECTION

Returns Show Victory Complete; All His Aides Win Nominations, Too.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12. After four unsuccessful attempts, Senator Huey P. Long came to town on a Tuesday election and won.

His victory today in Louisiana's primary was so complete as to stun the anti-Long group and so sweeping were returns in this city that little, if anything, will be done about irregularities in county parishes, as charged by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

With only nine precincts of 262 missing, Huey had "put over" two congressional candidates for reelection; a candidate for Louisiana public service commissioner, and a candidate for Louisiana supreme court bench.

CARRIES NEW ORLEANS

In a stronghold never before halfway carried by Long, in this election he won 12 of 17 wards losing two of these by small margins.

Joseph Fernandez, campaigning for reelection on Huey's ticket and pointing to support of President Roosevelt, won 25,526 votes in the city against 23,098 for Herve Raelvich, young attorney opponent. Paul H. Maloney, also up for reelection, got 22,574 votes against 22,484 for Gus Blancard. Maloney's stand was with Fernandez.

Francis Williams, virulent anti-Long candidate received 46,681 votes for reelection to the public service commissioner, compared with 47,660 for James O'Connor, Jr., whose platform with Huey was to reduce telephone and public service rates.

JUDGE WINS TOO

Civil District Judge Gleason, with anti-Long support, received in the city, 46,093 votes for the supreme court, compared with 48,391 for Judge Archie Higgins, who enjoyed Huey's support.

Name "Mackinac"

The island is Mackinac and the county is Mackinac also. The name of the strait and of the city is spelled Mackinaw. These names are of the same Indian derivation and are pronounced alike, as mak-in-aw, with accent on the first syllable.

Old Army Game

Jud Tunkins says it's the old Army game for a man to act proud and haughty when you ask him a question, the object being to conceal the fact that he doesn't know the answer.
